ENGLISH SYNDICATE

About to Buy Coal Fields in East Tennessee and South Kentucky.

Thousands of Acres of Coal Lands Along the Southern Railroad and Considerably Over a Million of Dollars are Involved in the Enterprise.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 9.—An immense deal, now in process of consummation, by which all the coal mines and lands in east Tennessee and southern Kentucky, lying along the line of the Cincinnati Southern railroad, will shortly pass into the hands of a big English syndicate, came to light Tuesday.

The information is furnished by Mr. Robert Walton, manager of the Rugby Land Co., the English company which built the pretty little city of Rugby, in east Tennessee.

Mr. Walton states that an agent of a big combination of English capitalists is now en route to England, bearing with him options on all the mines and the best coal lands in the section named, and that if his report is satisfactory to his employers, as it doubtless will be, deals will be closed with the present owners at once. The agent has been at work securing the options for some time past, but for various reasons, has kept his movements secret.

The idea of the English capitalists is to secure a monopoly of the coal business in this section, and to put all the mines on a paying basis. The trades for the mines along the Cincinnati Southern are to be closed first, and the Jellico and Coal Creek mines will likely be secured later.

Thousands of acres of coal lands and considerably over a million dollars are involved in the deal.

LABOR RIOT.

One Man Killed and Two Others Seriously Injured at Minonk, Ill.

PONTIAC, Ill., June 9.—A serious labor riot occurred at Minonk. The coal miners have been on a strike there since May 1. During last week a few men have been working against the wishes of the majority. Tuesday, while Superintendent A. W. Morgan, and one of the bosses, Joseph Erbeland, were escorting one of the men to work, a crowd of miners interfered. A fight ensued and Morgan and Erbeland commenced to shoot, killing instantly a young married miner named John Wesloski, and wounding another. This so enraged the miners that they attacked Morgan and Erbeland with clubs and stones and beat them badly. Morgan may not live. The town is excited and there is no telling where the trouble may end.

The death of Superintendent A. W. Morgan, which occurred late Tuesday afternoon, apparently satisfied the desire for revenge on the part of the enraged strikers. No further trouble is now apprehended.

IRON HALL TAXES.

The Supreme Court Declares Marion County Has the Right to Collect Them.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 9.—The supreme court Tuesday reversed the decision of the lower court in which an injunction was granted forbidding the county auditor and treasurer from collecting taxes against $322,847 Iron Hall funds which Receiver Falley held on deposit in the banks in this city.

The appellants contended that the taxes should be assessed against the 43,000 members of the order, scattered over the country.

The decision Tuesday holds that as the property is in the hands of the receiver in this state, it comes within the jurisdiction of the state. The taxes amount to $8,026.95.

Minister Angell Postpones His Departure.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 9.—Dr. Angell, who was to have sailed for Constantinople on Saturday to assume his post of minister to Turkey, announced Tuesday evening that he will postpone his departure for a week in order to finish his work in the university as lecturer upon international law. He may possibly remain longer to deliver the baccalaureate sermon at the college commencement.

Many Desertions in the Navy.

BOSTON, June 9.—More than three score men have recently deserted from the warships New York and Massachusetts, together with those who left the Texas while she was here last week. Twenty-eight men took French leave of the Texas and 30 are missing from the New York. It is not known how many more are missing from the Massachusetts. In every case the deserters are of foreign birth.

Killed Her Lover.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., June 9.—Florence Williams killed her lover in McDowell county Tuesday evening after a heated quarrel and escaped. Both are members of prominent families. There is much excitement over the matter. The man was killed in a fit of jealousy, and was, at the time, preparing to take up a large tract of timber land to make ties for the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad.

Disturbance on Account of the Oetrol Duties.

VALENCIA, Spain, June 9.—Serious disturbances have occurred at Benicarlo and Chelva, this province, on account of the Oetrol duties. At Benicarlo a man attempted to blow up a house with a bomb, but it exploded prematurely and dangerously wounded the man.

Yellow Fever on Board.

NEW YORK, June 9.—A special to the Herald from Lima, Peru, says. The steamer Santiago, from Panama, which arrived in port at Callao, has been ordered to quarantine, having yellow fever on board. Augustin Olessi, a passenger from Panama, is so seriously ill with the fever that it is believed he will die.

Struck for Nine Hours.

BOSTON, June 9.—In compliance with the order of the union, the sheet and plate glaziers of this city, struck Tuesday night to enforce a nine-hour work day.

FOR RUIZ'S DEATH

A Demand for Full Reparation Will Be Made on Spain—There Will Be No Indecent Haste or Bluster by the President.

NEW YORK, June 10.—A Washington dispatch to the Herald says: "A demand for full reparation for the Ruiz outrage will be made by the president, but there will be no indecent haste nor unnecessary bluster in Mr. McKinley's representations to the Spanish government."

This statement was made by a cabinet officer. The Spanish government is preparing its side of the case. Dr. Congosto, who represented the Spanish government in the investigation, will arrive here Thursday with his report, which takes a directly opposite view from that of Consul General Lee. This will be submitted to Minister De Lome, who, after viewing it, will submit a report to the Spanish government.

Senator Foraker, of Ohio, of the committee on foreign relations, said: "Consul General Lee's report simply confirms my opinion in regard to the death of Dr. Ruiz. I have never had a shadow of a doubt that he was killed in prison, and that the Spanish government was responsible for his death. This government should at once demand indemnity from Spain, and should take such a firm and decided stand that there would be no danger of any other American citizen in Cuba being subjected to such treatment."

MAHER-SHARKEY FIGHT.

Police Interfered at the End of the Seventh Round—A Draw.

NEW YORK, June 10.—Peter Maher and Tom Sharkey fought Wednesday night at the Palace Athletic club for a $15,000 purse. At the end of the seventh round the police interfered and the contest resulted in a most unsatisfactory draw. Never in the history of the ring has there been such an enormous attendance at a boxing bout in this vicinity. There were about 10,000 persons squeezed in the big building at 107th street and Lexington avenue.

A more representative congregation of well known sporting men has never witnessed a boxing mill than that which assembled at the club house Wednesday night. The quantity of money which would have changed hands had the bout resulted in favor of either man is well up in six figures. Those arrested, including the principals, seconds and referee, were escorted to the One-Hundred-and-Fourth street police station, first allowing Maher and Sharkey to go to their dressing rooms and put on their street clothes. All furnished bail. So far Brady has not been arrested.

IN A DILEMMA.

To Hang or Not to Hang Durrant, is the Question.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 10.—Warden Hale, of San Quentin, conferred with Attorney General Fitzgerald Wednesday as to his position with regard to the execution of Theodore Durrant, but after being closeted together for two hours both officials declined to be interviewed as to the conclusion reached by them. Durrant's attorneys profess entire unconcern as to what the state officials intend to do with their client, claiming that the warden dare not proceed with the execution after being served with a notice of appeal to the supreme court of the United States, and threatening in the event of Durrant being executed, to proceed against the warden and governor upon charges of conspiracy and treason. It is considered as very unlikely that Durrant will be hanged Friday under the existing circumstances.

HOT WEATHER.

From This On Predicted by Weather Prophet Hicks.

ST. LOUIS, June 10.—"Look out for hot weather from now on," said Prof. Hicks, the weather prophet, Wednesday. "Between the 10th and 13th is the Vulcan storm period. This period is coincident with the regular magnetic disturbance central all ways about June 11. It is natural to expect, therefore, between the 10th and the 14th, much lightning, many showers and sudden gusts of wind. While there will be many electrical displays in the sky during the next few weeks, they will not be of the dangerous nature. The storm clouds, too, will be seen to move erratically through the rest of the month."

Fatal Accident in Boston.

BOSTON, June 10.—An accident by which several persons were injured, one perhaps fatally, occurred Wednesday by a collision between an express train and an electric car at the corner of Bromfield and Washington streets. The car struck the rear of the heavy train, which was pushed violently against the crowd of passers-by, catching them between the wheels and a fence, which surrounds a new building.

Negro Killed by a Mob.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 10.—Wm. Andrews, colored, alias "Cuba," was taken from the officer at the door of the courthouse and killed by a mob. Andrews had been Wednesday tried, convicted and sentenced to death for feloniously assaulting Mrs. Benjamin T. Kelley, near Marion, on May 5. Judge Bage, who passed the death sentence upon Andrews, endeavored to reason with the excited crowd, but in vain.

Child Plays With Matches.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., June 10.—While attending to her household duties Wednesday afternoon Mrs. J. A. Maranda, of this city, put her three-year-old daughter to bed for a nap. The child when left alone obtained some matches, set fire to the bed and was burned to death.

The Blow Was Fatal.

MARION, O., June 10.—Mrs. George Klinge, residing near Waldo, died of lockjaw, the result of a blow received about three weeks ago. Her husband struck at a cow with a club, but missed and struck his wife in the face.

NO DOUBT

The President Will Soon Take Action on the Cuban Question.

The Spanish Mission Considered at the Cabinet Meeting—Failure of the Republican Caucus to Act on the Hawaiian Treaty Causes Comment.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Assistant Secretary Day said Tuesday that the report of Consul General Lee upon the results of the investigation made in Havana, in the Ruiz case, had not yet been received at the state department. Consequently it was not possible to learn whether the publications purporting to be copies of the report were accurate. Assuming, however, that the consul general's conclusions are correctly set forth, in brief, that Ruiz died while in jail, in violation of his treaty rights, the question of the largest importance is, what shall be the next step? The wife of Ruiz has filed with the department a claim for $150,000 for the death of her husband. The Spanish contention has been that he was not killed and that he was not treated harshly. Gen. Lee's inquiry is understood to have failed to bring out the truth on these points, but his statement on another, namely, that of his confinement in violation of treaty rights, appears to make the first two points non-essential and to leave the case resting on the broad claim that in confining Dr. Ruiz for more than 72 hours without permitting him to communicate with his friends or trying him, the Spanish officials in Cuba have assumed full responsibility for the results of that extra confinement. The fact being established that Dr. Ruiz kept up his citizenship by registering himself at American consulates in Cuba from time to time, as required by regulations, is taken as an offset against the claim that by continuous residence in Cuba for nearly 20 years, he had forfeited his rights as an American citizen, so it is surmised that the next step in the case will be the presentation of a claim against the Spanish government in behalf of the family of the victim of this illegal imprisonment.

The cabinet meeting Tuesday lasted longer than usual. The Cuban situation was discussed in a general way but the most important subject presented was the Spanish mission. The availability of three men for this important post at Madrid was carefully canvassed, but no decision was reached. One of the cabinet officers said after the meeting that the selection was still open and will go over until the president's return from Nashville trip. It may be that the non-appearance of Mr. Calloun may have had something to do with postponing action Tuesday. If Mr. Calloun does not have an opportunity for a talk with the president before Mr. McKinley's departure at noon Wednesday he will be invited to accompany the president on his trip. A berth has been reserved on the train to be placed at his disposal in case he joins the presidential party.

The failure of the republican caucus Tuesday to take steps looking to the protection of the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty has caused considerable comment, but the friends of Hawaii in the senate say that the omission was due to no other reason than the want of sufficient time. They feel confident that if the point had been reached an amendment similar to that proposed by Senator Davis continuing the treaty in force would have been accepted. They base this assertion upon the manner in which Senator Fry's speech was received and the side remarks made upon the subject. They now express the utmost confidence that the finance committee will accept the amendment without caucus action.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—There was a revival of Cuban talk about the senate Tuesday on account of the return of Mr. Calloun. The republican senators, some of them members of the foreign relations committee, say there is no doubt that the president will take action as soon as Mr. Calloun's report is received. No definite information was given concerning the attitude of the president but the impression of the senators from such reports as they heard was that there would be a change from the present negative policy and the adoption of a definite line of action with a view to endeavoring to secure a settlement of the present unfortunate state of affairs in Cuba.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—W. J. Calloun, of Illinois, the special commissioner sent to Cuba by President McKinley, arrived from New York Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. He went immediately to Judge Day, the assistant secretary of state, who was awaiting him, and together they proceeded to the white house. They were shown into the cabinet room where President McKinley and Judge Day listened to Mr. Calloun's description of the situation in the war ridden island and to the conclusion reached by him.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The republican senatorial caucus Tuesday voted to stand together on all schedules in the tariff bill. The caucus instructed the finance committee to report a new sugar schedule.

The new sugar schedule is to be all specific and on all sugar which has gone through a process of refining 1.95 cents (one and ninety-five hundredths of a cent) per pound duty instead of one cent and eight hundred and seventy-five one-thousandths of one cent per pound as provided by the house.

President of Monmouth College. MONMOUTH, Ill., June 9.—Rev. Dr. T. McGill, of Allegheny, Pa., was elected president of Monmouth college Tuesday afternoon to succeed Rev. J. B. McMichael, D. D., whose resignation was presented Tuesday morning. Dr. McGill is a graduate of Washington and Jefferson college, Pennsylvania.

Commander Ewingate Dead. MALDEN, Mass., June 9.—Commander George Ewingate, U. S. N., of the Charleston navy yard, is dead. He was born in Portsmouth, N. H., in 1837, and had been in the service since 1862.

THE COMMITTEE

Agrees to a Number of Amendments in Agriculture Schedule.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The senate committee on finance has agreed upon a number of additional amendments to the agricultural schedule, the most important of them relating to fish as follows:

A new paragraph on canned fish is to be recommended as follows: "235—fish known or labeled as anchovies, sardines, sprats, Brislings, sardels or sardellen, packed in oil or otherwise, in bottles, jars, tin boxes or cans shall be dutiable as follows: Containing 7½ cubic inches or less, 1½ cents per bottle, jar, box or can; containing more than 7½ and not more than 21 cubic inches, 2½ cents per bottle, jar, box or can; containing more than 21 and not more than 33 cubic inches, 5 cents per bottle, jar, box or can; containing more than 33 and not more than 70 cubic inches, 10 cents per bottle, jar, box or can, if in other packages 40 per centum ad valorem. All other fish, except shell fish, in tin packages 30 per centum ad valorem; fish in packages containing less than one-half barrel and not specially provided for in this act, 30 per centum ad valorem."

The rate on pickled or salted herring is increased from one-half to three-quarters of a cent per pound, and on fresh herring from one-quarter to one-half cent.

The following substitute is made for paragraph 235:

Fish, fresh, smoked, dried, salted, pickled, frozen, packed, on ice or otherwise prepared for preservation not specially provided for in this act, three-quarters of a cent per pound; fish, skinned or boned, one and one-quarter cents per pound; mackerel, halibut or salmon, pickled or salted, one cent per pound.

A new paragraph on chocolate was agreed to as follows:

"Chocolate and cocoa, prepared or manufactured, not specially provided for, valued at not over 15 cents per pound, 2½ cents per pound; valued above 15 cents per pound and not above 24 cents 2½ cents per pound, and 10 per cent ad valorem; valued above 24 and not above 35 cents per pound, 5 cents per pound and 10 per cent ad valorem; valued above 35 cents, 50 per cent ad valorem, the weight and value of all coverings other than plain wooden shall be included in the dutiable weight and value of the foregoing merchandise. Powdered cocoa, unsweetened, 5 cents per pound."

The paragraph relating to extracts of meat was amended so as to provide that the dutiable weight of this article should not include the weight of the package in which it is imported. The house rate of one cent per pound on edible berries which the committee originally struck out is restored and cranberries are specifically added at 25 per cent ad valorem.

The rate on chile root was fixed at 2½ cents per pound, the house rate being 3 cents and the original finance committee rate 2 cents.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—In the appointment of John G. A. Leishman, of Pennsylvania, Wednesday, to be minister to Switzerland, the president has turned down Brutus J. Clay, of Kentucky.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The special train conveying President McKinley and his party left Washington for Nashville at noon Wednesday over the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad. The private car of President M. E. Ingalls, in which Mr. McKinley and his immediate party traveled, was fragrant with gigantic pots of roses and other flowers. There were also flowers in the car occupied by the cabinet and the invited guests. The train was in the charge of W. H. Gregor, agent of the passenger department of the road.

The party consists of President and Mrs. McKinley, Secretary and Mrs. Porter, Dr. and Mrs. Bates and Mrs. Saxton, Secretary Sherman and daughter, Mrs. McCallum, Secretary and Mrs. Alger and Miss Frances Alger, Postmaster General and Mrs. Gary and the Misses Gary, Secretary Wilson and Miss Wilson, Commissioner of Pensions Evans, Gen. Grosvenor, Joseph P. Smith and Mrs. Smith and about 25 newspaper men.

Tariff Commission League.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The tariff commission league has opened headquarters in this city. Samuel B. Archer, secretary and treasurer of the league, will be in charge. The object of the association is to secure the passage of a bill for the appointment of a tariff commission whose duties will be to suggest to congress changes in rates of duty and thus take the tariff question out of politics.

The New Minister to Hayti.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Wm. F. Powell, of New Jersey, who was Wednesday named as minister to Hayti, is a colored man who lives in Southern New Jersey. He was urged for the position by Senator Sewall and Representative Loudenslager.

Chinese Drowned in a Gale.

VICTORIA, B. C., June 10.—Meager particulars were brought by Empress of Japan of a disaster which befell the fishermen of Chusan Archipelago, off the coast of China. On May 6, while all, or at least most, of the fishing boats were out on the fishing banks, a terrible gale sprang up. Of the several hundred boats out at the time very few returned, and it is estimated that some 500 men lost their lives. The storm swept over the entire archipelago. Several large junks were lost, in which scores perished.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Extraordinary Session.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—SENATE.—The senate again made good progress on the tariff bill Thursday, covering about ten pages of the tariff schedule and almost completing it. The formal contest against the measure was maintained, but all amendments tending to change the bill as reported were voted down, and the finance committee sustained. The debate was mainly of a technical character, the republican senators continuing the policy of refraining from making speeches. Before the tariff bill was taken up Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, gave the senate another hour of exciting controversy over the proposed sugar investigation. He defended himself from published charges relative to his administration of the governorship of South Carolina, and then moved that the committee having charge of the sugar resolution be discharged from the subject directly before the senate. After a long and bitter debate Mr. Tillman withdrew his resolution.

HOUSE.—The house proceedings Thursday were enlivened by a single incident, the attempt of Mr. Terry (dem. Ark.) to secure consideration as a privileged matter of a resolution for the immediate appointment of a committee on foreign affairs. It was ruled out of order, and an appeal taken from the decision of the chair was laid on the table by a strict party vote. Mr. Simpson, popular leader, was absent and several bills passed by unanimous consent. The Fry bill to prevent collisions on certain harbors, rivers and inland waters of the United States and the senate resolution for the relief of the El Paso flood sufferers amended so as to make the appropriation of $10,000 available out of the unexpended balance of the appropriation for the Mississippi flood sufferers, were passed, and the conference report on the Indian appropriation bill was adopted. Adjourned until Monday.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—SENATE.—The senate had a period of speech making Friday and as a result little progress was made on the tariff bill. The advance covered about two pages or seven paragraphs and brought the senate up to the wool schedule, the first item of which was considered but not completed. Mr. Mantle spoke for two hours on the wool schedule, urging increased rates for the wool-grower and Mr. Butler (N. C.) made a plea in behalf of income tax.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The senate Monday disposed of the lumber paragraph which has been more stubbornly contested than any feature of the bill thus far, by defeating the motion of Senator Vest, to place white pine on the free list years, 20, 30, 35, 40, 45, 50, 55, 60, 65, 70, 75, 80, 85, 90, 95, 100. The contest was a significant instance in breaking party lines which have been maintained with few exceptions during the early days of the debate. On the final vote, eight democratic senators voted against Mr. Vest's proposition, namely: Messrs. Bacon, of Clay, Georgia; McHenry, of Louisiana; McLaurin and Tillman, of South Carolina; Martin, of Virginia; Rawlins, of Utah, and White. On the other hand, Mr. Carter, republican, and Messrs. Cannon and Mantle, silver republicans, voted for the Vest motion. Following this, a vote to substitute the Wilson lumber schedule was defeated, 21-37, and the schedule was agreed to as reported. The debate preceding the vote was at times very strong, owing to the political lines. A general discussion of the future programme on the bill occurred before the senate adjourned. It led to a statement by Mr. Allison, in charge of the bill, that the committee probably would submit amendments to the sugar schedule. For this reason he announced that the sugar schedule would be passed over Tuesday and the tobacco schedule taken up.

HOUSE.—The house was in session for an hour or two Monday and adjourned until Thursday.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—SENATE.—By the decisive vote of 42 to 19 the senate adopted the amendment to the tariff bill placing raw cotton on the free list, and the original finance committee rate 2 cents.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—In the appointment of John G. A. Leishman, of Pennsylvania, Wednesday, to be minister to Switzerland, the president has turned down Brutus J. Clay, of Kentucky.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The special train conveying President McKinley and his party left Washington for Nashville at noon Wednesday over the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad. The private car of President M. E. Ingalls, in which Mr. McKinley and his immediate party traveled, was fragrant with gigantic pots of roses and other flowers. There were also flowers in the car occupied by the cabinet and the invited guests. The train was in the charge of W. H. Gregor, agent of the passenger department of the road.

The party consists of President and Mrs. McKinley, Secretary and Mrs. Porter, Dr. and Mrs. Bates and Mrs. Saxton, Secretary Sherman and daughter, Mrs. McCallum, Secretary and Mrs. Alger and Miss Frances Alger, Postmaster General and Mrs. Gary and the Misses Gary, Secretary Wilson and Miss Wilson, Commissioner of Pensions Evans, Gen. Grosvenor, Joseph P. Smith and Mrs. Smith and about 25 newspaper men.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The tariff commission league has opened headquarters in this city. Samuel B. Archer, secretary and treasurer of the league, will be in charge. The object of the association is to secure the passage of a bill for the appointment of a tariff commission whose duties will be to suggest to congress changes in rates of duty and thus take the tariff question out of politics.

A Blind Man's Sagacity.

A story was told the other day by a lawyer of an experience that a brother of his, a blind man, had a few days since while he was in the city from a small town in Jersey, where he resides. On the day mentioned the blind man was with a guide and stood on the corner of Twenty-third street and Broadway, wishing to cross the street. While debating with himself as to whether he would try it alone or call a policeman, a woman came up and addressed him, saying: "Mister, would you be kind enough to help me across the street? There is such a jam of trucks and carts that I am afraid to try to cross alone." "Certainly," with pleasure, madam, he responded, and offering her his arm, they started across Broadway, crossing in safety. "Thank you, very much," said the woman. "No, madam. It is I who am thankful, for I am blind and you helped me to avoid that dangerous crossing very nicely," said the man. "Oh," said the woman, in a reproachful tone, "You horrid man! Why, I might have been run over!"—N. Y. Times.

Are Particular Buyers.

The leading steel men agree that the most particular buyers of the country are the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct. This company will only accept the most perfect of selected lots. Such information is not surprising to any one who knows the quality of Winchester guns. A SONG OF LABOR.

In days of old the sailor
Gave honor to the hand,
And those that did not labor
Were princes in the land;
To-day has crowned with glory
The brow bedewed with toil;
The theme of song and story
Has risen from the soil.

No more are felt the shackles
That once held man a slave;
The furnace fire that crackles
Has melted sword and glove.
O freemen all, and brothers!
Find joy in what you do;
The happiness of others
Is laid in trust on you!

O worker! see the beauty
You're building to the skies;
Along the path of duty
You're nearing Paradise!
The flowers of art that blossom
In column, spire and dome
Shall lie in Labor's bosom
And beautify her home.

And Peace shall come, and wonder
Shall fill the world anew—
Eternal arms be under
To wait you dangers through.
The sun will shine still brighter,
The stars will sing and shine,
The burden will be lighter,
For labor is divine.

CAPTAIN GLOSE

BY CAPTAIN CHARLES KING.

[Copyright, 1894, by J. B. Lippincott Co.]

X.—CONTINUED.

Lambert stood speechless one instant. Then, simply raising his forage cap, he whirled about and left.

The boy was thinking of his own mother when he tripped so lightly up that worn old gravel path on his way to inquire how he could be of service to one whose dignity and sorrow and suffering had so impressed him. He had donned his best uniform for the mission, and little dreamed how in so doing he had rendered himself much the more persona non grata. He, who could not war upon women and children under any circumstances, had not begun to learn how bitterly the recent war had borne upon the women of the south, or how, even so long after, they suffered from its effects. He had gone to offer the aid and protection of a loyal heart and a strong arm, and had not realized that it was the very last succor a Walton would seek, so long as both heart and arm were draped by the union blue.

Not ten minutes after his return, discomfited and dismayed, there rode up the muddy, red bridge-path—for it was little more—a broad-faced young fellow who was attired in the clumsiest of "store clothing" and whose lean and long-necked steel looked dejection itself as his vigorous rider dismounted, slung the reins over the gate post, and, after one sharp and warning survey of the silent negroes still hovering about, swung cheerily up the walk. To him the old doors opened wide without a summons, and eager hands were thrust forth in welcome.

Lambert, hearing the first heavy drops come thumping on his canvas roof, thought it was the rain that so quickly thinned the group of darkies on the road. He could hear the mule-hoofs spluttering away through the mud as the rain came quicker and faster, but not until several hours later did further explanation dawn upon him. Then he heard Burns and Watts in conversation at the first sergeant's tent.

"Did you see how the niggers kind o' lit out when he came?" asked Burns. "I haven't seen him around here since August. Reckon he knows captain's away. He hates him like poison ever since cap interfered in that row he had with Parmelee."

"Looks like a pleasant enough fellow. I'd rather back him than Parmelee any day, 's far as looks go. What's he doing here?"

"He's some kin to the old lady—they're all related hereabouts—and she's sent for him to come, probably, after last night's row."

"But they're talking all over the company about Murphy's yarn—about there being some relative there—some man—last night. You heard it when he talked to the lieutenant."

"Oh, yes," answered Burns, evasively, "I heard what he had to say, but Riggs shut him up short as soon as he was sober enough to know what Murphy was saying. Wait till Riggs tells his side of the story to the lieutenant. Then perhaps we'll know what brought Mr. Barton Potts over here."

Lambert was up and at the door of his tent in a minute. "Did you say that Mr. Barton Potts was at the Walton place now, sergeant?"

"Yes, sir," answered Burns, whirling about in the mud and promptly saluting.

"Then have some man let me know when he comes out. I wish to speak to him. And if Riggs is sober enough now, send him here."

Presently, looking moist, bleary-eyed, and dejected, the ex-trooper and sergeant was marched up through the pattering rain, and, with the big drops trickling down from the visor of his old war-pattern forage cap, stood sulkily at the tent of his young commander. The guarding sentry, after the fashion prevailing among some of the regular infantry at the time, allowed his rifle to topple forward from the "carry" into the grasp of the left hand, a foot or so in front of the right breast, and with this well-intended effort at the "rifle salute" of the '60's, Private Mulligan reported—

"Prisoner Riggs, sorr; to spake to the lieutenant."

It was the first time Lambert had conducted an investigation of the kind, and he had no precedent to guide him.

"Riggs," said he, "Murphy tells me your going to town last night was at the instance of some relative of Mrs. Walton's, who asked you to do them a service. Was that true?"

"It was, sir."

"Then he will doubtless be glad to come forward and exonerate you, or at least explain your conduct in the early evening. Your later conduct only a court-martial can properly consider.

"Where is this gentleman?"

"I don't know, sir."

"What is his name?"

"I can't tell, sir."

"You know it, do you not?"

"I suppose I do, sir, but—I can't tell it."

"In the event of your trial he is the only man who can help you, and the report I have to make of your misconduct is most serious. Drunkenness only aggravates housebreaking and attempted robbery, as well as assault."

"I broke no houses, sir, and attempted no robbery. As for assault, the lady herself will say I meant no harm."

"But your own comrade admits he found you in the cellar entrance at the foot of the steps, on premises you were forbidden to enter, to all appearances stealing wine, and he was striving to get you away when the noise brought Mrs. Walton upon you. The case is flagrant."

Riggs threw his hands forward in a despairing gesture, dropped them again by his side, and stood silent.

"Do you mean you have nothing to say for yourself—that you cannot disprove the charges?"

"I have plenty to say for myself, sir, but nobody to say anything for me. The worst anyone can ever prove of me is that I've been a drinking man. I'm no thief; I'm no burglar; and I'd burn me hand off before I'd lay it to hurt a woman, old or young. I never knew what I was doing, if I grabbed the lady by the throat. But I'd be a worse man than the lieutenant thinks me if I'd do what he asks."

"This is nonsense, Riggs. What have I asked you to do that would be either criminal or wrong?"

"To defend myself at the expense of a friend, sir," said Riggs, with melodramatic gravity. "I'll never betray the man that's trusted me."

"Take him back to the guard tent, sentry," said Lambert, hardly knowing whether to be amused or disgusted. "The man isn't sober yet."

And then for the first time the young officer became aware of the presence of a horseman at the side of his tent. With his hat brim pulled down over his eyes and the rain dripping from bit and boot and bridle rein, there sat his acquaintance of the owl train—Mr. Barton Potts.

"One of your men said you wished to see me, Neutenant," said Mr. Potts, with a courteous wave of his hand. "I was coming anyhow, but rode round from the bahn yawndub and came in 'long the branch. Excuse me if I've stumbled on something I wasn't expected to hear."

"Certainly, Mr. Potts. Can you dismount and come in? I much want to talk with you."

"And I want to have a talk with you, lieutenant—very much—and I'm coming for the purpose, but not just now. There are some matters I must tend to in town for my aunt, Mrs. Walton, at once. But let me add my thanks to hers—and much more than hers—for your prompt assistance last night. I know that man by sight. I've seen him around here before, and it's Gawd's mercy I wasn't there last night. I'd 'a' shot him dead."

"You can be sure he shall not escape justice, Mr. Potts, though your aunt seems to refuse to see me with regard to the matter."

"I'll explain all that later, sir," said Potts, lowering his voice. "I've simply got to go at once. But I'll see you tonight, and meantime let me repeat what I said. You shan't lack for a friend round here, suh. You treated me like a gentleman when I was drunk and possibly offensive—though I hope not, suh—and you've behaved like a gentleman to my people, and by and by they'll see it. Just you wait. By the bye, you remember Col. Scroggs?"

"I don't think I do. Some of that name were among the prisoners who escaped yesterday, I'm told."

"Yes, suh. The same family, suh; Col. Scroggs' brothers. I can't discuss them just now, but if the colonel should come here to see you before Capt. Close gets back, if you'll take my advice you'll listen to him. He wants to speak about that arrest and square things; and—well, I know a gentleman when I see one, just as I know a rough—like that soldier you were examining. The colonel was conductor of our train night before last. Now I've got to ride like hell. Good day, suh."

And, pulling off his hat and sticking spurs to his mud-covered steed, Mr. Potts galloped away along the Tugaloo road into the gathering darkness.

Soon after nightfall the rain ceased and the wind died away. For the first time since he had turned in the night before Lambert bethought him of the lantern he had purposed buying, even if he had to send to Cohen's on a Sunday. Burns sent some candles over from the company stores and the young German "striker" set two of them alight in his tent, with empty whisky bottles—off which he had deferentially washed the labels—as candlesticks.

One thought led to another. The proposed purchase reminded Lambert that all the money in his possession was now the $20-bill borrowed of Close, and this reminded him that he wanted five dollars in small currency—"shipplasters," as the miniature greenbacks were called at the time. Since hearing Murphy's story he better understood the straits to which his neighbors were reduced, and he had determined that the aid he had proffered in one way should, despite madame's high-spirited rejection, be rendered in another.

At eight o'clock he had secured the amount he needed through the good offices of the first sergeant, and he was wondering how soon he might expect the visit of Col. Scroggs and what could be its purpose, when all of a sudden the clatter at the other end of the camp told him of the return of the detachment sent out the previous night; but it was Sergt. McBride, not his company commander, who met him at the tent door.

"The captain's compliments, an' he'll be back by an' by, sir. He stopped over to have it out with somebody that fooled him."

"Stopped over where, sergeant? Not alone, I hope?"

"No, sir; the sheriff was along, an' two others. They were talking with Mr. Scroggs—or Col. Scroggs—and a young fellow they called Potts, who met us across the track on the Quitman road. The captain said you wasn't to worry about him, but we didn't get the parties the sheriff was after, and the captain thinks he knows who threw us off the scent."

Manifestly nothing was to be done but await the captain's return, and nine o'clock came without him. Lambert had determined to investigate the butter market, however, and time was not hanging heavily upon his hands by any means. Throwing a light-blue overcoat, such as was worn by the rank and file, over his uniform, he sallied forth just after nine o'clock, and made his way around the camp until he reached the road, and followed it to the gap among the rose-bushes whence had rolled the tin pail on the previous night. All was dark and still. Setting the pail just within the hedge, he patiently waited. Presently voices—feminine voices—became faintly audible. "Elinor" had evidently been pushed forward on reconnaissance, and, after her recent nerve-racking experiences, didn't like the detail.

"I tell yo' dey ain' no one 'bout, Mis' Katie. I done felt fur de pail, an' taint' day-h, is her protest. At this Lambert saw fit to give a low whistle, at sound of which Elinor, with prodigious rustle of skirts, bolted back towards the house, and her unseen companion, after emphatic and scornful reference to "bawn cowds," came hurriedly forward, but paused at discreet distance.

"You're theh, ah you?" was the semi-assertive, semi-interrogative remark in disdainful and truculent tone. "Ah hope you've got that money at last." For an answer Lambert reached in and shook the pail. The combination of "shipplasters" and small coin within gave a reassuring rattle. Eagerly the girl bounded to the hedge. He could just discern the slender little form and the tumbled head of hair as she dropped the enfolding shawl and stooped to take the prize—which the unprincipled young man had by this time cautiously withdrawn. He could hear her eager breathing and the patter of her hands among the rain-laden branches.

"Whuh on earth" (who on earth can spell the word as a real southern girl says it?) "did you hide that pail? Ah've no time fo' nawnsense."

Silence a moment.

"Look hyuh, Mr. Yankee! Ah'm not accustomed to being made a fool of. 'Ah want that money. Ah've had to wait too long already."

A sound as of something shaking in a tin vessel, but further away, towards a broader gap in the dark hedge.

"Ah'm not going up thuh. Ah told you twice befoh. You bring that pail back hyuh" (indignantly). Ah don't believe you've gawn the money at all" (tentatively). "If you had, no gentleman would keep me waiting—when we need it so much." (Symptoms of vanishing nerve, and again a tempting rattle). "Ah can't go there" (pleadingly now). "Please bring it hyuh, Mr. Riggs. Brothuh Floyd would be fuyious if he knew" (pause)—"an' we had such awful trouble last night—all on account of some of your rascally—Oh! what's that new lieutenant's name?" (Sudden change of theme and tone).

"His name's Ike," was the response in a hoarse whisper across the dripping rose bushes.

"Ah don't believe a wuld you say. Whut's his real name?"

"Ask Mr. Potts if his name isn't Ike; and come and get your money."

"Ah don't have a chance to ask Mr. Potts anything. They don't allow me in the pahlor when Mr. Bahton Potts comes. Ah'm too much of a child to be trusted with family secrets, it seems; though Ah'm not too young to find out how much we need money—Whuh's that pail?"—suddenly coming down to business again.

Lambert gave it a shake, this time within reach of a little hand that darted in among the bushes and firmly closed upon his own.

"You let go that pail!" was the imperious demand from within.

"I can't—till you let go my hand," from without.

"Ah don't want your hand. Ah want—"

"I didn't offer it, but, since you like it so much, here's the other." And through the darkness another hand, with soft warm palm and long, slender fingers, closed in upon the hot little pail, straining and tugging at the original occupant of the handle. Instantly, with indignant force, the enfolding member was snatched away, and the stooping girl sprang to her feet, wild-eyed and alarmed.

The rain dripping from bit and boot.

"Wh' ah you?" she panted. "That's not Sergt. Riggs." A window was suddenly raised back towards the house; the mournful toot of a tin horn began "Quick! Ah've got to go. Roll that pail through. Why didn't Mr. Riggs come?" "He's detained—on duty, but it's all right. Where's the buttermilk?"

Through the trees behind the girl came Elinor at top speed; one could hear the rustle rods away. "F' Gawd's sake, Mis' Katie, come quick. Mis' Walton's calling."

But Kate was fumbling for something in her pocket and bending forward to the hedge. The next instant, with brilliant flash, the glare of a parlor match leaped out one second on the night and fell full on a laughing, handsome young face peering in from under the visor of an infantry forage cap. One second only, and down went the match, and with stifled cry bounded the youngest daughter of the household of Walton—even the precious pail forgotten.

Ten minutes later a horseman came galloping up the muddy road and inquiring for the lieutenant. Lambert recognized him as one of the deputies or assistants engaged in Saturday's affair at the jail. He handed a folded paper to the young officer, and, in low, excited tones, began some explanatory comments.

"Wait," said Lambert. "Let me read." Tearing open the paper, by the dim light of Burns' lantern he made out the following:

"Lieut. Lambert: Post guard at once around Walton place, so as to prevent any men from getting in or out. Take half the company if you need it. I'll be there in half an hour."

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

A THRIFTLESS GENIUS.

The Hand-to-Mouth Existence That Was Led by Leigh Hunt.

Leigh Hunt had no sense, either of time or money—a grave fault, perhaps an unpardonable vice in a man who had a wife and children dependent upon him. As long as he lived he was thriftless and needy, a lender and a borrower, so generous that he could never afford to be just, bringing upon those whom he loved sincerely a constant burden of debt and care. How reprehensible this was he seems never to have felt, though he blames himself freely and light-heartedly, and if the reader of his autobiography is disposed to feel sorry for Mrs. Hunt, it is not because her husband sets him the example. This was Leigh Hunt's one vice, never amended nor actively repented of. Yet he had had his warning. It is pathetic to compare with each other the two following passages and see how clearly Leigh Hunt foresaw his danger and how incapable he proved of escaping it:

"I have seen," he writes in 1808, "so much of the irritabilities or rather the miseries, accruing from want of a suitable income, and the best woman of her time was so worried and finally worn out with the early negligence of others in this respect, that if ever I was determined in anything, it is to be perfectly clear of the world and ready to meet the exigencies of a married life before I do marry. For I will not see a wife who loves me and is the comfort of my existence afraid to speak to me of money matters. She shall never tremble to hear a knock at the door or to meet a quarter-day."

And in 1832:

"I never heard a knock at the door * * * but I think somebody is coming to take me away from my family. Last Friday I was sitting down to dinner * * * when I was called away by a man who brought an execution into my house for 40 shillings."—Temple Bar.

Pat in the Dock.

The other day an Irishman who was charged with being drunk and disorderly nearly drove a magistrate mad. The following colloquy took place between the two:

Magistrate—Will you sign a pledge if I let you off this time?

Prisoner—Shure, Oi can't write, yer honor.

Magistrate—But you can make a mark.

Prisoner—Phat koind av a mark, yer honor?

Magistrate (testily)—A cross, man—a cross.

Prisoner—Across phat, yer honor?

Magistrate (out of patience)—Ten shillings and costs, or seven days' hard labor!

Prisoner (aghast)—Tin shillin's 'n' costs! Shure, Oi haven't cost anywan anything, yer honor; Oi paid for all me drinks.

Magistrate (severely)—Stand down, sir—stand down!

Prisoner—Oi always stand up when Oi stand at all. Is it sit down yer honor names?

Then the jailer took the prisoner in hand, and the magistrate mopped his moist brow.—London Figaro.

Absent-Minded.

The palm for absent-mindedness is probably taken by a learned German, whom a Berlin comic paper calls Prof. Dusel, of Bonn. One day the professor noticed his wife placing a large bouquet at his desk. "What does that mean?" he asked.

"Why?" she exclaimed, "don't you know that this is the anniversary of your marriage?"

"Ah, indeed, is it?" said the professor, politely. "Kindly let me know when yours comes round, and I will reciprocate the favor."—Tit-Bits.

Kleptomania.

"I am happily able to prove," remarked the counsel for the defense, "that my client is a kleptomaniac. To that end, if it please the court, I submit in evidence the deeds in her name to $100,000 worth of unencumbered real estate and gilt edged securities to the amount of another $100,000. We rest."

The jury found a verdict of acquittal without leaving their seats.—Detroit Tribune.

CURIOUS BEAR FEASTS.

Queer Ways of Some Interesting Savages in Northern Japan.

The queerest festival ever heard of is celebrated annually by certain savages who live on the island of Yezo, in the Japanese archipelago. They are the hairiest people in the world, some of the men being so covered with long fur that their bodies can hardly be seen. The bear is worshipped by them as a god, and it is the ceremonial pertaining to this cult that is described as so remarkable.

They have good reason to respect the bear of Yezo, which is a huge and ferocious animal, closely resembling the American grizzly. It does not hesitate to attack man, and when hungry it sometimes enters dwellings in search of food. On the other hand, the hairy people are brave hunters, and, though possessing no better weapons than bows and arrows, they do not hesitate to assail the brute. The arrows are poisoned, and a mere puncture of the skin is so fatal that bruin will surely fall dead before he can run 200 yards.

This poison is prepared from young roots of the aconite plant. Ordinarily the hairy people use it for set bows in the woods. When a bear comes along and steps on a cord, an arrow is released and enters the flesh of the animal. In parts of Yezo the forests are dangerous to travelers by reason of these set bows. Bears are extraordinarily numerous on the island, and they furnish clothing as well as food to the inhabitants. Bear gall, too, is greatly prized as a medicine.

Thus the hairy people regard bruin with the highest respect, giving him a place of honor in their pantheon. To propitiate him and to atone for having put his brothers and sisters to death, they hold periodical feasts, the most important feature of which, oddly enough, is the sacrifice of a young bear. There is eating and drinking and dancing for several days, at the end of which the bear is crushed to death under a big log, upon which the merry-makers mount. Finally, the animal is cut up and eaten, and its skull is placed on the sacred hedge which is found on the east side of every house.

It is a great honor to be the giver of a bear feast. Only a comparatively rich man can afford it, because the host must pay for everything, and immense quantities of rice, brandy, or sake, are consumed. At the end of winter a baby bear is caught and placed in a cage of logs. At first it is suckled by some woman, usually the wife of the captor, and later on it is fed with fish. The festival takes place in September or October, by which time the captive animal has grown so big and strong as to threaten to break out of its prison. The ceremonies are elaborate, but consist most importantly of drinking and dancing. For awhile the woman who served as wet nurse for the bear sits aside, sorrowful, having a quasi-parental feeling toward the victim.

At length young bruin is taken out of the cage by three or four strong young men, who lead him around for a time. Then he is made a target for arrows which, instead of pointed heads, have blunt wooden ends decorated with bits of red cloth. Next, the animal is taken before the sacred hedge, a log is laid upon him, and the men mount upon the log, crushing the poor beast to death. Meanwhile the women dance around, with lamentations, striking the men, to manifest their indignation at such cruelty. Finally the body of the victim is laid on a mat near the hedge, and the men proceed to get helplessly drunk.

On the following day the bear is cut up, its blood being caught in cups and greedily drunk. The liver is taken out, chopped into small pieces, and eaten raw, with salt. The flesh and entrails are put in the house, to be divided among the participants in the feast next day. An offering is made in the skull, through which the brains are removed, and the latter are passed around in cups, mixed with sake. Finally, the empty skull is filled with shavings and raised on a pole above the sacred hedge.

The men of this hairy race have such enormous mustaches that they are obliged to hold them up when eating or drinking, by means of flat wooden implements shaped like paper catfish. Their hair and bushy beards are never combed or cut. These people are of small stature, though rather bigger than the Japanese. They are brown, but their exact shade is impossible to tell, inasmuch as they never bathe or wash. The girls are good looking, save for tattooing about the mouth. It begins when they are six years old, and as they grow older it is gradually extended until it forms a broad band all around the mouth. The tattooing is done by scarifying with knives and rubbing soot into the cuts.

The hairy people weave a coarse kind of cloth from the fiber of the bark of the mountain elm, and their principal garment is a long coat of this material. In winter their clothing is of skins, for the climate is cold, and they have waterproof shoes of fish skin for traveling over snow. Their houses are thatched with reeds or straw. The fireplace is a depression in the middle of the hut, and a hole in the roof affords an exit for the smoke. At night a primitive lamp, consisting of a large mussel shell, a wick and some fish oil, gives some light. The only musical instrument properly belonging to them, and not derived from the Japanese, is a species of jew's-harp made of bamboo. Cakes of dried lily roots are a favorite edible. These savages marry early. Polygamy is permitted, but it is not much practiced. Sexual morality is not strictly enforced among the unmarried. Thieves are punished by beating with clubs. A murderer is bound to a cross for a week, and, being then released, takes his place as an honorable citizen.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Liverpool is the most densely-populated city in Great Britain, having a population of 57.9 per acre, or 114 per acre excluding the docks and quays.

THE WORLD'S POLICE.

Irish and Spanish Said to Be the Finest in the World.

An Englishman whose hobby is the study of policemen all over the world says that the Irish constabulary and the civil guard of Spain are the finest bodies of police in Europe. The Spanish civil guard was established in 1845, when highwaymen were numerous in Spain, and the duty of its members is still to patrol the high roads and practically to guard travelers. Their power is almost absolute, but they do not abuse it. They wear dark blue tunics and yellow belts, with knee breeches and old-fashioned gaiters.

The Italian police are divided into five sections, the first being the carabinieri, who wear dark blue tail coats, trousers with red bands, silver buttons and ornaments, cocked hats with tri-colored cockades, gloves and swords. The Neapolitan police are especially smart in appearance. The Berlin police were found rather disappointing, for, although a fine body of men as regards height, they have a decided tendency to stoutness.

Their methods of enforcing order are firm, but almost invariably polite. The policemen in Vienna are great dandies. Russian policemen are bigger than any in Europe, and are compared in this respect with those of New York, but it is stated that the "Broadway squad" can give inches in size to any body of men in Europe.

The Russian force is divided into three sections, urban, suburban and river police. Men of the urban division wear black, with yellow and red facings, those of the suburban section black with purple facings, and the river police black with white facings.

The Japanese police bear the palm for picturesque, especially in their summer costume. They wear white, with a sort of cape attached to their hats hanging down on their shoulders. The Fiji islands are kept in order by a body called the "armed native constabulary." Their tunics of dark blue with scarlet facings contrast strikingly with scolloped kilts of white linen. The uniform of the Madras policeman consists of a gayly-colored turban, dark jacket, white trousers and sandals.—Chicago News.

A New Source of Power.

A new and simple source of power is proposed for engines and is declared to be not only practicable, but advantageous in respect to the latter, it being claimed that the material producing the power can be used continuously without the necessity of renewal. According to this idea, originating with Hermann Poppe, of Hamburg, Germany, a mixture is employed of ammonia vapor and carbonic acid gas, eventually under access of steam, which, however, is not essential, and thus, by the expansion of the gas mixture, a cooling of the vapors in the cylinders of the engine is produced. In this way a

The Republicans are in no measure responsible for a surplus in the Treasury at this time. The Government's revenue is due to Democratic legislation, and the only thing the Republicans can claim credit for is the heavy increase in importations, due to the anticipation of a high tariff. It is their fault if money now goes out faster than it comes in. —[Louisville Times.]

Theatrical And Otherwise—Remarks In The Foyer.

Paris will probably not be visited by the Mid-Summer Stock Company which will play ten weeks in Central Kentucky, visiting Frankfort, Lexington, Mt. Sterling and Winchester. The company will play one certain night each week in each city. Saturday night was selected for Paris but the arrangements were not perfected. Saturday night attractions have not, as a rule, drawn well in Paris. The Mid-Summer Company plays each Wednesday night in Lexington and the Frederick Bond Stock Company plays there each Saturday night.

Full Details Gladly Given. A Railroad Official's Experience.

MR. EDWARD EDMONDS, long connected with railroad construction in Nebraska, writes: "My heart troubled and pained me for 19 years. Shortness of breath was the constant and most common symptom. Intense, excruciating pain, generally followed any severe exertion. Faintness, hunger without any appetite; fluttering that made me clutch my breast, and palpitation that often staggered me as if I would fall, were frequent attacks. Again, everything would turn black if I arose from a stooping posture quickly. Sleepless nights with their prostrating unrest were numerous and I could get no rest day or night. I consulted leading physicians and tried advertised remedies. They gave me no relief. One of Dr. Miles' circulars described my case so exactly that I took Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and I am now a well man. I hope every one troubled with heart disease will try Dr. Miles' remedies. If they will write me personally, I will gladly give them full details of my experience." EDW. EDMONDS.

Large Purchase of Cattle.

THIS week Moses Kahn, of this city, has bought 416 cattle from the following Bourbon parties: From Chas. Meng 90, Chas. Collins 20, Quisenberry 90, John Evans 50, Nelson Mason 32, Frank Isgrig 20, C. F. Clay 80, Geo. Wyatt 35, John Collins 34. The cattle weighed between 1,400 and 1,500 lbs., and cost Mr. Kahn $4.50 per cwt.

A Novel Entertainment.

DECIDEDLY novel and pleasing will be the "Old Maids' Convention" to be given at the Opera House in this city on the 17th by the ladies of the Paris Methodist Church. Twenty-two of the funniest old girls imaginable will be introduced and by a most wonderful machine are to be transformed in lovely sweet sixteeners. The admission fee will be thirty-five cents.

Sold In New York.

THIS week 125 thoroughbred yearlings from leading studs in Kentucky—21 from Clay & Woodford's "Runymede Stud"—were sold at auction in New York. Among the sales were:
 Brown colt by Hindoo; dam Imported Salara by Salvator. T. J. Meehan, New York, $1,050.
 Chestnut colt by Hindoo; dam La Esmeralda by Imported Glenelg. Louis Stuart, New York, $750.
 Brown colt by Sir Dixon; dam Merry Maiden by Virgil. A. J. Jouett, $1,000.

 BEAUTIFUL in appearance are the waists laundered by the Bourbon Steam Laundry. (Smyt)

The Elks Capture Paris.

JOLLY Elks from Louisville, Lexington, Covington, New Albany and Mt. Sterling swooped down upon Paris last night and captured the city. The occasion for the visit was the institution of the Paris Lodge and visiting Elks came to assist in the ceremony. They were given a hearty welcome by the local Elks, who entertained their guests after the Lodge meeting with a banquet at the Windsor.

The Covington Lodge was represented by about thirty members and was accompanied by Shafer's Band. In the delegation were Hon. Harvey Myers, Jesse McCourt, John O'Day, Joe Patten and J. H. Seltenkamp—the latter driving the goat in the parade.

Among other prominent Elks were Sid Gates, J. P. Simmons, Louisville; Evan Prosser, New Albany; Sidney Johnson, Mt. Sterling; J. W. Ecton, E. D. Sayre, Jr., and C. S. Bell, of Lexington.

President Loos Resigns.

THE resignation of President Charles Louis Loos, of Kentucky University, was accepted by the Board of Curators in annual session Wednesday. The retiring President will, however, continue as instructor of the Greek language and literature, which branches he has always taught in addition to his executive duties.

The question of a successor to President Loos was left in the hands of the Executive Committee, with power to act. They will ascertain whether the man chosen will accept before an announcement of their choice will be made. It is said that the Curators and the committee strongly favor Eld. Zack Sweeney, ex-Consul to Turkey, and brother of Eld. J. S. Sweeney, of this city.

Bourbon Boys Graduate.

WEDNESDAY Buckner Clay and J. Louie Earleywine, of this city, and Hardin Lucas, late of Paris, graduated from Kentucky University at Lexington.

Zed C. Layson, of Millersburg, graduated Wednesday from Central University, at Richmond, and Spencer Best, of Millersburg, was a member of the graduating class at Centre College, Danville, Wednesday.

To-night at the opera house H. M. Clendenin, Robert Hunt, Misses Nellie Mann, May O. Borland, Mary Minter, Elizabeth Ashurst, Lucy Downey and Maud Power will graduate from the Paris High School.

The L. A. W. Meet.

CYNTHIANA is making extensive preparations to entertain the Kentucky bicycle boys on June 22 and 23. The following paragraph is found in the elegant programs, issued by the Democrat office:

"Wheelmen will find a cordial welcome awaiting. Cynthia—sweet, prudent soul—is primping demurely. Anna—frolicsome and gay—eagerly waits the game of hearts—Both ride a wheel. Let eyes look love to Cynthia and perhaps eyes may speak love again. Flirt gayly with Anna. Nature built Lovers' Lane for no other purpose. "The city shall be wide open to wheelmen. Nothing is too good for them, and nothing in this glorious Blue Grass Region is too good for Cynthia. Come early and stay late."

Riley Makes a Killing.

A dispatch from New York says: "Riley Grannan made his first big winning Tuesday. He went up and down the line on Paul Kanvar, while his fellow plungers were playing On Deck, Rensselaer and Elkins. His winnings were not so large as usual, for Grannan seems to have lost some of his nerve. It is said that $15,000 is a fair estimate of the amount he gathered up from the layers."

Touring Kentucky Awheel.

Mrs. J. G. WILSON, Mrs. J. F. Perrie, Miss Mamie Scott, of Mayslick, Miss Mamie Lawrence, of Philadelphia, Miss Jessie Kennedy and Mr. G. A. Brooks, of Covington, came up Wednesday on their bicycles from Mayslick, and spent the night at the Windsor. They left yesterday morning for Lexington, Georgetown, Harrodsburg and other points in Kentucky.

Fought Over a Pipe.

ABE JONES and Stephen Douglas, two negro men who fought over the possession of a pipe, were tried in Squire Lilliston's court, and Jones was fined $14. Geo. Dickson was this week fined $7.50 for disorderly conduct. Lottie and Minnie Meng, of Millersburg, are serving a sixty days sentence in jail for keeping a disorderly house.

Liquor and Logs For Germany.

YESTERDAY 555 barrels of whiskey from the G. G. White distillery were shipped over the L. & N. for export to Germany. Six car loads of walnut logs were shipped over the Midland the other day to Norfolk, Va. They will be sent to Hamburg, Germany.

YES, there are other laundries, but for perfect color, fine finish and most uniform work, the Bourbon Steam Laundry excels. Phone 4. (Smyt)

NUPTIAL KNOTS.

Engagements, Announcements And Solennizations Of The Marriage Vows.

Six weddings are to occur soon in Cynthiau.

Miss Pattie Gentry and Mr. John Stout were married Wednesday at Danville.

Mr. Andrew Morris, 17, and Miss Mamie Hite, 18, both of Louisville, were secretly married May 24th in Jeffersonville.

Geo. W. Donovan, of Midway, and Miss Lizzie Peter, of Georgetown, eloped to Jeffersonville yesterday morning.

Robt. I. Settle, of Mt. Sterling, and Miss Blanche M. Cook, of Louisville, met yesterday in Maysville and were married.

The engagement is announced of Mr. D. W. Chesant, of Richmond, and Miss Katherine Reid, at Mt. Sterling. The date of the wedding is June 30th.

J. G. Blanton, of Cincinnati, was married in Lexington, Wednesday, to Miss Jennie B. Glass, of Stamping Ground, Scott county. The ceremony was performed at the Phoenix Hotel by Eld. Mark Collis.

Mr. George Noel Parris, of the Reporter, and Miss Willie Elizabeth Earleywine, daughter of James Earleywine, will be married on the 22d by Rev. A. J. Ramsey, at the Duncan Hotel, in Nashville. They will join the Kentucky Press Association at Middleboro for a trip to Chattanooga, Knoxville and Nashville. The News in advance extends congratulations.

Three fashionable weddings occurred this week in Lancaster. Wednesday morning Miss Alice Fox Young was married to Mr. Clarence Witter, of Dallas, Texas, and Miss Mattie Walker became Mrs. George D. Robinson. The third marriage occurred last night at the Christian Church, the principals being Miss Ellen Owsley and Mr. Wm. R. Cook. All three events were of great social importance.

In Danville yesterday at high noon Miss Sue Thornbury Irvine was wedded to Mr. John Mairtianne Gerard, of Bowling Green, in a fashionable ceremony performed by Rev. Dr. Green at the Presbyterian Church, which was decorated in pink and white. The bride, who was beautiful in white organdie and a white hat, was given away by Mr. W. L. Davis, of this city. Miss Mary Irvine, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mr. Claud Ingcoe, of Bowling Green, was best man. The ushers were Messrs. Tom Clark, Richard Embury, Martin Welsh, Danville, and D. Curry, Harrodsburg. A six o'clock dinner was given to the party. Wednesday evening by Mrs. I. W. Irvine, and a reception was tendered them last night at Bowling Green.

The Turnpike Question.

The owners of the Harrodsburg pike in Fayette held the road at such a high price that the Fayette Fiscal Court will build a cut-off road instead of buying it. The new pike will cost $8,000.

Clark county will very likely vote on the free turnpike question in November.

The Maysville and Lexington Turnpike Company had prepared poles to be erected Monday, but Saturday night a gang of raiders cut them into kindling wood. Late Sunday afternoon a bunch of switches was left at the Bluelick toll-house, with the notice that they would be used if another attempt should be made to collect toll.

County Judge Hutchins has ordered guards placed at a toll-gate in Mason county, where an attack has been threatened by raiders.

A dispatch from Flemingsburg says: "On advice from the County Attorney, Judge Boone decided to appoint guards on the Maysville and Lexington pike. The company called for ten guards at each of the two gates, but the Judge would appoint only two to each gate."

The Fleming Fiscal Court has secured control of twelve miles of the Maysville & Mt. Sterling pike, paying $4,000 and 85 shares in the road. There is now only one tollgate in Fleming.

WATER IN PASTURES.

How to Construct a Good Tile Well at Small Expense.

A convenient and cheap watering place for stock in pastures, away from the barn, through which tile drains run, may be made for a considerable part and often the whole season in the following manner: Three or four feet from the main drain dig a hole deep enough so that two barrels may be placed one on top of the other, the top of the lower one coming about level with the bottom of the main tile; this position for the lower barrel will bring the upper one usually a few inches above the top of the ground.

Connect the main tile to lower barrel with a few lateral tile of small size laid on slight incline and passing through the side of the barrel. Through these side tile the water will run from the main drain and keep the lower barrel nearly full of water at all times when there is the least flow in main drain.

Remove the bottom of top barrel before putting in position.

Better not use salt barrels for the top ones, as stock will destroy them more or less; kerosene barrels well burned out are excellent.

A pump may be used in this well or the water easily dipped with a pail by hand or with a short pole.

This arrangement prevents any refuse matter getting in the main drain, and if the well is covered none can get in it.

In the accompanying illustration the lower barrel is cut in two, showing the depth of water. BB shows the barrels. A main tile, aaa, conveying tile.—Alonso Stansel, in Western Rural.

SCIENCE OF MILKING.

There Are But Few Men Who Understand It Thoroughly.

It is not everyone that can milk a cow as it should be done. Some can milk two cows while another is milking one. The operation should never be hurried; neither should it be done slovenly; but the milk should be drawn steadily as it flows. Some cows have tender teats, and in milking too rapidly the operation is likely to be roughly done, or if too much prolonged the cow gets irritated. A cow that is naturally impatient and fretful does not like to submit to rough handling, and if continued her disposition will soon be ruined by such treatment. The constant practice of being milked at regular times soon impresses itself strongly upon her, and she will readily submit without trouble. As the udder becomes distended with milk, it is a relief to her to have it drawn out. When the udders are filled to the utmost with milk they become painful, and if not relieved the cow becomes restless. If this happens frequently or for any considerable time it will cause the cow to dry up prematurely. Milk the cow dry. The last portion of the milk is the richest and best. In most cases neglect to milk regularly and clean is one cause of the cow's drying up early, of giving bloody milk, of garget and other evils. With kind treatment, regularity in feeding and milking, the cows will not only become gentle and stay so, but will give milk longer, and the season's product will be larger. A really good dairy cow is too valuable to be given anything but the best treatment.—St. Louis Republic.

ENLARGING THE UDDER.

Why the Best-Paying Cows Are Found in Grass Countries.

The relaxation of the udder sack becomes so conspicuous in large milkers, in some instances, as to make it evident that the combined influence of expansion and weight tension together have overcome the natural contractive force of the udder skin, thus permanently enlarging the bag by destroying, or, at least effectually suspending, its natural and necessary contractibility. This result is clearly shown in the uncontracting bags of cows that are dried only with great difficulty and breed but seldom, or fail to breed at all. The skin or sack of the udder is, of course, thinned down, as yield and size of bag increases, and this, when carried to excess or effected too rapidly, is doubtless the chief cause of loss of contractile power in the udder skin. Increase of feed being the cause of increased yield, each feed adds to the bulk of blood increases yield and the size of the udder together. This succulent feed, like grass and roots, tends to enlarge the yield and the bag, and in this will be found a reason for the largest milk-producing cows being generally found in the best natural grass localities, in both dry and humid climates. Thus the best grass countries in America do, or surely will, with equal care and training, produce the largest or best yielding cows as a rule.—Ploverman.

Hint for Orchard Planters.

Inexperienced orchard planters usually manifest an inclination to plant large trees, whereas an old and successful planter would probably select one or two-year-old trees. The latter are, we think, more certain to grow, and often make the more symmetrical appearance, for the orchardist can begin their training at an earlier age. Large trees lose more of their fibrous roots when moved than do smaller ones, therefore do not take hold upon the soil so readily nor grow off so vigorously.—Agricultural Epitome.

PLANTING FORESTS.

Hundred Men Can Plant 1,000 Acres in About 30 Days.

Robert Douglas, the pioneer nurseryman of Waukegan, Ill., has shown by his own experience that it is not only easy to plant a forest of 100 or 1,000 acres in a season, but that it is also possible to make it pay—for the planter—that is. It pays richly for the owner later. He is not inclined to glorify the European forestry, as some of our Americans do. If the Europeans had the task of setting out forests upon our treeless western prairies, they would find it harder than maintaining a standing army.

Americans can, however, manage the task, because they do things by the large. They cultivate by horse and steam power instead of by hand power. The forest trees should be planted in rows and tended like orchard trees. In selecting trees to plant those native to the locality, if there are any, should have first consideration, as these will surely thrive best. Many growths that do well in the east are not suitable for the west. "Western trees for western planting" is the motto, because western trees are the surest. The green ash, for instance, makes a fine and vigorous growth in the west, while in the east the white ash is far superior to it. The chestnut has been thoroughly tried in the west, and has been found wanting. The pines and other conifers of the Pacific slope will not grow at all in the prairie belt, although the conifers of the Rocky mountains will.

Mr. Douglas finds that 100 men can plant 1,000 acres of forest in 30 days. The ground should, however, have been previously prepared. Either autumn or spring will do for the planting. In spring the seeds of the trees should be sown so soon as frost is out of the ground. By fall they will have made a growth sufficient for transplanting to the forest that is to be. Forty acres will grow seedlings enough to plant 1,000 acres.

The farmers of Kansas have set out in the past few years 147,340 acres of forest. Among them are 11,500 acres of black walnut, 12,486 acres of maple, 2,637 acres of honey locust and 55,553 acres of cottonwood. The cottonwood grows the quickest and makes fuel for the farmers sooner than any of the others, hence his preference for it. Land prepared as for corn planting will grow the seedlings.—Norwich (N. Y.) Sun.

A MARKETING WAGON.

Good Thing for Farmers Who Sell Their Own Produce.

Many gardeners and farmers have discovered that much more money is made by selling their produce at first hands from door to door than by selling to merchants or commission men. A convenient wagon is of the greatest importance if one is thus to market his produce. Such a wagon is shown in the cut given herewith. It is "low-hung," and has its lower part boxed in and floored over. Access is had to this inclosed space by raising the driver's seat in front, by a door on each side in the middle, and by two doors in the rear. At one side two drawers are shown. One of these is most convenient for carrying the flat parchment covered prints of butter to market, carrying the drawer to the customer's door to avoid handling. The other can be used for eggs, using the ordinary pasteboard fillers placed one upon another. The rear can have drawers or not, according to the nature of the produce to be carried. Above the rear doors are two metal "open work" doors, that hold in the vegetables or other articles that are piled loosely in the wagon's top. The center of this top space is easily reached from the canvas door in either side. The top is, of course, covered with canvas, and should have the name of the farm painted upon each side, with the nature of the goods carried. This will advertise and enlarge one's trade.—American Gardening.

New Facts About Trees.

It seems to be well understood that a man is taller at morning than at night, but it has remained for a young woman named Fry to discover that the boughs of trees hang much higher in winter than in summer. Doubtless the low hang of the summer is because of the weight of the leaves, but it is a surprising thing that the difference is so great as reported by Miss Fry. She found that a certain branch of a mulberry tree was 31 inches higher in December than in August, and a weight of 35 pounds was not enough to make the bough assume its August attitude in December.

Calendar for Fruit Growers.

W. N. Mitchell, commercial freight agent of the B. & O. R. R. in Atlanta, has just issued a very unique calendar for the fruit and vegetable growers of the southern states. It is one of the cleverest methods of advertising that has been put out in the south. It is full of attractive illustrations, and also contains a complete almanac and pictures of the watermelons sent by Mr. Mitchell to presidential candidates McKinley, Bryan and Levering. The B. & O. has become a large factor in the handling of southern produce and fruits for the eastern market.

His Honor's Sturdy Platform.

"Honest Elections and Good Roads" is the platform on which Charles G. Ritchie, of Louisville, Ky., is standing for reelection next November as judge of Jefferson county court. He ought to run well on a platform of good roads.

DOGS IN ALASKA.

The Animals Are Important Factors in the Gold Fields of the Yukon.

The native Yukon dog is much more valuable than the importations from Puget sound, says a Tacoma correspondent in an article about dogs in the northern gold fields. The dogs must be acclimated in order to stand the severities of the winter. It is found that dogs taken from Montana and Dakota endure the Yukon winters with less suffering than those bred in the milder climate of Puget sound. Two splendid specimens of native Alaska dogs were brought here a few days ago; their owner finding it cheaper to pay their passage on the steamer than to have them boarded at Dyea during his trip here for supplies. The animals weigh, one 82 and the other 88 pounds. The larger one cost its owner $117 at Circle City. It is a cross between a dog belonging to a family of missionaries that went to the Yukon years ago and one that hailed from the shores of the Mackenzie river. Both animals are stout, well proportioned and muscled, and have exceptionally short and heavy necks. Their ears are short and lifted like those of the Eskimo dog. Their coats are dark, and the hair, while not close, is smooth and heavy enough to form a comfortable protection against the Arctic winters and the Yukon mosquitoes, by the side of which the ferocity of the New Jersey variety pales into insignificance. A specially prepared dog food made out of meal and coarse meat from the packing-houses is now being manufactured in the form of a cracker and seems likely to come into general use.

Buckskin moccasins are provided by many owners to keep the feet of the animals from being worn raw on the ice and snow. They are about nine inches long and made much after the pattern of a child's stocking. Pack saddles are also coming into use this spring. These are so arranged that dogs can carry a weight of from ten to twenty pounds besides drawing a sled. The saddlebags fall on either side, and straps are arranged to prevent the pack from sliding forward or backward.

A Tacoma dealer has built up a large business in the manufacture of dog harness. A suit of harness usually weighs 2½ pounds. The collar is made to slip over the dog's head, obviating the necessity of buckling it about the animal's neck when the driver's hands are cold and numb. The collar is made of leather faced with sheepskin and stuffed with deer hair. The harnesses are inclosed in the collar, and attached to them are buckles for fastening the traces. On each collar are placed rings to which the traces of a dog in the lead may be attached, making it easy to drive teams in tandem. Traces in the harness for native dogs are made of heavy web material, because the dogs eat the leather harness. They devour the collars on sight if permitted to do so. This peculiar craving makes it necessary to keep the animals separated when harnessed, so that they shall not masticate one another's collars. When the web traces become oily the dogs chew even them, and it is only a matter of time when the web trappings become food for the hungry creatures.—N. Y. Sun.

THE SHANS.

Interesting Inhabitants of the Region Between Burma and China.

The Shans, like all uncivilized peoples, are an interesting race. They inhabit the mountainous regions between Burma and the frontier states of the Chinese empire. To the west of them lie the great plains of Burma proper, watered by the Irrawaddy; to the north and east lies the province of Yunnan, and to the south are the Karen hills and Siam. The river Salween flows through the country. To the west of it are great rolling grassy downs, 3,000 to 5,000 feet above sea level, backed by wooded hills which rise in places to 9,000 feet in height. To the east of the river the country is broken up into a confused mass of forest-clad hills and narrow valleys, with here and there a small oasis until the large plain of Keng-Tung is reached, and behind it the mountains, and behind the mountains the river Mekong.

There is a tradition among the Shans that they once held an ancient and mighty kingdom in the north of the present Burma empire. The race is widely diffused, and is probably the most numerous of the Indo-Chinese races. They are found from the borders of Manipure to the center of Yunnan and from the valley of Assam in Cambodia and Bangkok. "Everywhere Buddhists, everywhere to a considerable extent civilized, and everywhere speaking the same language." The kingdom of Siam is now the only independent Shan state; the others are tributary to it, or to Burma or China.

In the criminal law there is an admixture of the Jewish and Teutonic; the relatives of a murdered man or woman may take 300 reals, or they may demand life for life. Dacoity (highway robbery) is a capital offense; so also is the theft of valuable property, and in the case of the lowest and poorest death is awarded even for petty thefts. A man's relatives are responsible for his misdeeds, "and in the case of horse or cattle theft or for dacoity a whole village or even a small township is laid under contribution should the immediate relatives fail to pay the required compensation."—Journal of the Anthropological Institute.

The Superstitious Man.

"I am going to take my money out of the Solidstone bank," said the man who is a slave to a belief in signs.

"What!" said the other man. "Isn't shaky, surely?"

"Not that I know. But I just found out that their cashier's name is Skip-with."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

ASTRONOMERS AT WAR.

Director Holden and Prof. Hussey, of Lick Observatory, at Outs.

Trouble Starts with the Resignation of Prof. Barnard—Efforts Looking to a Reconciliation to Be Made.

Director Holden and Prof. Hussey, of Lick Observatory, are at outs. A peace commission is already on its way to the scene of hostilities, headed by Judge C. W. Slack and directed by the regents, to hear their grievances, to arbitrate their differences if possible, and, if not, to recommend some course that will restore harmony among the astronomers. Timothy Guy Phelps will probably assist in the investigation. Gov. Budd was to have been present, but was recalled to Sacramento on business.

The difficulty began with the inability of Prof. Holden and his subordinates to agree. After the resignation of Prof. Barnard, Holden recommended Prof. Hussey, of Stanford University, for the vacancy. At first Hussey refused, but afterwards he reconsidered and accepted the offer. The new astronomer declares that Prof. Holden told him he was to take Barnard's place and go on with Barnard's work.

Director Holden has represented to Judge Slack and others of the regents that Hussey was never employed under any such agreement.

Judge Slack is anxious to compromise the matter if possible. He thinks both men may be satisfied, and hopes to prevent any breach of the peace, though the two men have not had written communication with each other for some time and affairs are quite as frigid on top of the mountains as they were during Barnard's residence there.

TO EXPLORE HUDSON BAY.

Canadian Government Expedition Will Soon Sail in the Diana.

The steamer Diana, which will carry the government expedition to Hudson bay, arrived at Halifax, N. S., the other day from St. Johns, N. F., and will be provisioned at once for her long sojourn in the north. The Diana is a fine steamer for ice work, and was specifically selected on that account. The scientific party and the ship's crew will make the number on board over 50. The exploration of Hudson straits is expected to be the most far-reaching in results of any yet attempted. The purpose of the expedition is to discover the period for which Hudson straits are navigable, in order that grain steamers may run through and load wheat from England at Fort Churchill, which will be the terminus of a railway to be built there from Manitoba. In addition to the various scientific investigations which will be made there will also be an attempt to learn the fishing possibilities of this vast body of water. The steamer will, if possible, leave here about May 20, go around by the front of Newfoundland, and proceed north to her destination, taking her chances of working in through the ice. If all goes well, she will return about the end of October.

MAIL BOXES ON STREET CARS.

Unique Experiment Tried by Postal Authorities at Des Moines.

An interesting experiment is being made by the postal authorities at Des Moines, Ia.

All the street cars have been provided with letter boxes, and the cars stop to permit persons to mail letters. These stops are made wherever the cars would ordinarily stop to take on passengers.

Des Moines is especially fitted for this sort of mail collection. All the street cars in town are operated by one company and all pass the post office or very near it. All the lines center at a terminus in the heart of the city and radiate from it.

The population of the city is widely scattered, and this method of collecting the mail seems to be the only satisfactory system that the people have had.

The experiment is due to the persistence of Postmaster Edward W. Hunter. The service was established April 19, and thus far has proved to be all that Mr. Hunter claimed for it.

AN INCIDENT AT THE CITY HOSPITAL.

A Woman's Life Barely Saved by a Critical Operation—Her Health Destroyed.

There was a hurry call for the ambulance of the City Hospital. In the course of an hour a very sick young woman was brought in on a stretcher. She was pale as death and evidently suffering keen agony. There was a hasty examination and a consultation. In less than a quarter of an hour the poor creature was on the operating table to undergo the operation called ovariectomy.

There was no time for the usual preparation. Her left ovary was on the point of bursting; when it was removed, it literally disintegrated. If it had burst before removal, she would have died almost instantly! That young woman had had warnings enough in the terrible pains, the burning sensation, the swelling low down on her left side. No one advised her, so she suffered tortures and nearly lost her life. I wish I had met her months before, so I could have told her of the virtues of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. As it is now, she is a wreck of a woman.

Oh, my sisters, if you will not tell a doctor your troubles, do tell them to a woman who stands ever ready to relieve you! Write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., confide freely to her all your troubles, and she will advise you free of charge; and if you have any of the above symptoms take the advice of Miss Agnes Tracy, who speaks from experience and says:

"For three years I had suffered with inflammation of the left ovary, which caused dreadful pains. I was so badly affected that I had to sleep with pillows under my side, and then the pain was so great it was impossible to rest."

"Every month I was in bed for two or three days. I took seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and am entirely cured. I think there is no medicine to be compared with the Compound for female diseases. Every woman who suffers from any form of female weakness should try it at once." MISS AGNES TRACY, Box 432, Valley City, N. D.

"Out of the frying-pan" into the fire." Take care that you don't go that way, when you try to make your washing easier. Better be sure of what you're doing.

Get Pearline, the original washing-compound, the best-known, the fully-proved. There are plenty of imitations of it. But even if they're not dangerous—and some are—they're not economical.

Pearline used properly, goes farther, does more work, and saves more wear, than anything else that's safe to use.
